

About JAMU

The Janáček Academy of Performing Arts (JAMU) is an art higher education institution, one of four in the Czech Republic. It was founded in 1947 and currently consists of two faculties, the Faculty of Music and the Theatre Faculty. There are approximately 750 students studying in more than 30 bachelor's, master's or doctoral fields of study that cover a wide range of musical and dramatic arts, such as percussion, string and wind instruments, conducting, singing and opera directing, jazz, musical composition, theatre dramaturgy and directing, drama and musical acting, physical theatre, drama education, theatre and music production, scenography or radio and television dramaturgy and scriptwriting.

The Janáček Academy of Performing Arts has a fruitful history and it has formed several generations of outstanding artists – composers, conductors, directors, actors, singers, instrumentalists and other artistic professionals in the field of dramatic and musical arts. Its establishment was the culmination of Leoš Janáček's lengthy effort to establish an art university in the country's second largest city.

Nowadays, JAMU wields a significant artistic potential. This is amplified by a number of activities that exceed the borders of the institution and its home country. The quality of our students and graduates is evidenced by the fact that they are routinely accepted for internships at a number of top foreign schools, become leading figures in the Czech theatre, audiovisual and radio production, find success in interpretation competitions and auditions, are the producers of today's prestigious cultural events and many of them find employment Abroad.
